City And County Planners

Discuss Developments

At Dinner Meeting

Visualizing great growth, city and county planning commissions mapped the future for the peninsula at a dinner meeting held, Thursday evening of last week, at a popular San Mateo hotel.

Heading the list of a dozen or more speakers was Hugh Pomeroy, county planning adviser, who painted a vivid picture of peninsula possibilities and also pointed out the accomplishments of the past few years.

Everything from a proposal that the county purchase the San Francisco-San Mateo line from the Market Street Railroad Company to harbor developments and the ticklish job of gaining right of ways should Junipero Serra boulevard pass through Hillsborough, Burlingame and San Mateo was discussed at the three hour session attended by ap-

Regular Session

The regular monthly meeting of District 26, American Legion Auxiliary, was held, Friday evening of last week, in the South San Francisco Legion hall with representatives from Menlo Park, Redwood City, San Mateo, Burlingame, San Bruno, Daly City and South San Francisco units present.

Among the distinguished guests were Mrs. Adelina Garavanta, department publicity chairman; Mrs. Helen Pilhashy, president of District 8; Mrs. Louise Murasky, president of District 7; Mrs. Ethel Pontius, past president of District 8; and C. H. Whitney, commander of District 26, American Legion. Whitney urged the support of the Auxiliary to the boxing matches the Legion is sponsoring at Pacific City beginning March 29.

Mrs. Florence Donnelly, Americanism and Fidac chairman, announced that all of the units in the county are conducting the essay contests in the schools and requested local chairmen to send winning essays to her for district judging not later than tomorrow.

San Mateo Coeds

To Hold Convention

San Mateo Junior College coeds have invited 22 junior college and state college women associations to attend the April 16-17 convention at San Mateo.

The invited colleges are expected to send a total of 132 delegates to the annual conference. San Mateo is arranging a broad program for the two day event.

Executive Appointee

Has Arrived Here

Having gained a nation wide view of county government, "glad to be back" and "ready to get to work immediately," Ernest A. Rolison, county executive appointee, who terminated a cross country automobile trip at Redwood City early this week, looks forward to the opportunity to do the best he can toward giving San Mateo County "good government."

Rolison will serve as budget director until he can assume the post now held by Walter T. Kellogg upon the expiration of the current term, May 29.

FORMER COUNTY

CLERK PASSES

AFTER ILLNESS

A Native Of The Coast Side,

Mrs. Kneese Played Major

Roll In S. M. History

Death came suddenly in San Francisco Wednesday to Mrs. G. Kneese, county clerk from 1919 to 1931 and one of the best known peninsula women, shocking her many friends and drawing expressions of deep regret from county leaders.

Although she had been in ill health since she left Redwood City in January, her illness was not believed critical and only Tuesday her condition was reported here to friends as being "much better."

County native, one of the key personages in peninsula affairs for the greater part of her life, she had suffered lately from a heart ailment, and it was believed that this caused her death at the Kneese Marina boulevard residence.

Streamlined Train

Makes Guest Trip

Drawn by its powerful streamlined steam locomotive, the new "Daylight" train of the Southern Pacific Railway made a guest trip from San Francisco to San Jose, on Saturday of last week.

Prominent San Francisco and peninsula persons were aboard, including civic leaders, publishers, society members and business men.

Air Mail To China

Will Start Sunday

The Post Office Department announced, this week, that the first flight on the trans Pacific air mail service extended to Hongkong, China, will be made Sunday of next week.

Connections will be available for airline services in China, to Australia and intermediate points and to India and intermediate points.

The route will be from San Francisco to Hongkong, by way of Honolulu, Hawaii, Guam, Manila, Philippine Islands, and Macao, Portuguese colony in Asia. The westbound flight will leave Hongkong April 29.

Postage between the United States and Hongkong will be 70 cents per half ounce.

Chico Plans Gold

Display In Fiesta

Gold mining resources of California will be vividly illustrated by Butte County participation in the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta, May 27 to June 2, celebrating the opening of the longest single span in the world.

The Chico Chamber of Commerce has proposed that a replica of the famous Willard nugget found in Magalia, California, in 1854, the largest placer nugget ever found in the United States, be carried by two miners during the Fiesta parades.

The nugget will be suspended on a pole carried across the shoulders of the miners. The miners will distribute small "nuggets" along the line of march of the parades.

Construction Cost Of First

Jaysee Unit Exceeds Cash

On Hand By $70,000

Delay in construction of the first unit, the science building, of the new San Mateo Junior College loomed as probable this week when it was revealed building funds set aside by the school trustees are inadequate.

This came to light following the board meeting, Thursday evening of last week, when Harry Thompson, Burlingame architect who succeeded the late George Kelham, told the board the building would cost approximately $160,000 to construct and furnish.

$90,000 ON HAND

The $90,000 set aside for building had previously been considered adequate.

Thompson went over costs of different types of construction with the board and insisted that at least a "B" class structure be erected. The present junior college, Burlingame and San Mateo High Schools are all Class "C" buildings, although all were recently earthquake proofed.

The architect listed the following prices:

1. Frame building, (Class D), costing $4.75 per square foot to construct.
2. Steel unit with wood floors,

ON NEW PUBLICATIONS: Although spring isn't quite here, the summer influx of new magazines into publishing circles has started. It seems to be more or less a custom during spring and summer months for editors to undertake new ventures.

Among those in the pulp field just getting their first few editions off the press are Ten Story Love Magazine, Popular Sports and Thrilling Sports.

The sport story magazines of the pulp type are rapidly gaining popularity among periodical readers.

SHORT STORY: "My Death at the Wheel" series that ran in The Sun-Tribune a few weeks ago didn't seem to influence many drivers, if accounts are correct of catastrophes which have occurred on Bayshore highway.

TODAY'S EPIGRAM: It is always an unloaded weapon that injures someone.

Baby Born 80 Feet 'Under Water'

The Pacific Coast's first "submarine baby" is doing very well, thank you, according to Alameda, Cal., hospital attendants. The baby boy, pictured with his mother, Mrs. Mae Clark, was born recently in an automobile speeding through Posey Tube, 80 feet below the surface of Oakland Estuary.

Charter Amendment

Becomes Effective

The amendment clarifying the manner of removing officials appointed by the county executive or Board of Supervisors formally became a new provision of the charter this week through affixing of the signature of Governor Merriam.

Certification from Secretary of State Jordan of ratification of the amendment by the Assembly and Senate was received by County Clerk Hinman, who said it is now a part of San Mateo County organic law.

Burlingame Resident

To Military Post

F. A. Bloom, City Hall, Park Road, Burlingame, has been appointed the Military Training Camps Association representative for San Mateo County. He will be in charge of association activities in enrolling suitable young men for the 1937 Citizens Military Training Camps.

"Citizens Military Training Camps are doing exceedingly valuable work developing the young manhood of the nation, and in building and strengthening the character of our citizenship," according to Mr. Bloom in commenting on his appointment. "I am happy to be chosen to offer this opportunity to the young men of my county. The training teaches teamwork and consideration for others and the outdoor sports and regular living is beneficial to the young men."

To Meet On Water

Maurice N. Swim and William Markt, representing the Bayshore Voters League, appeared before the Board of Councilmen, Tuesday evening of this week, to ask that the city oppose a current move to establish an auto and trailer camp in Bayshore. The league representatives alleged that such a camp would depreciate property values in the city and possibly constitute other menaces.

Mayor Lawson asked the city attorney to investigate the matter and return a report with recommendations to the council. The mayor assured league representatives that in the meantime no permit would be granted to build an auto or trailer camp within the city limits of Bayshore.

STEEL TRUSSES

JEFF HIGH GYM

Another 100 Yard Batch Of

Concrete Poured in Base

Of Swimming Pool

Steel superstructure of the new gymnasium and swimming pool at Jefferson Union High School is reaching its webby way to the sky. Huge trusses already cap a major portion of the swimming pool area. New shipments of steel are due the first of next week, and within ten days trusses will be swung into place for the gym.

Engineers started yesterday to pour another 100-yard batch of concrete in swimming pool forms. All gym and pool footings are now in, and from now on work will be speeded on portions of the structure above ground surface levels.

WORK RETARDED

Building progress has been hampered seriously by bad weather conditions and by a tie up in steel shipments during the water front strike.

Twenty skilled craftsmen and laborers are now pushing construction work at the highest possible rate of speed. It is expected that the gym and pool will be ready for use late next fall.

Fire Razed Home

At Brisbane

Fire destroyed the home of Ed Huggins, Sierra Pont road, early Saturday morning of last week. A neighbor, Mr. Igoe, turned in the alarm at 3:30 a. m. and when firemen reached the scene the entire house was in flames.

A nearby residence was endangered by the blaze. Firemen directed streams of water to this exposure and battled the fire with secondary hoses. In spite of being handicapped by a shortage of water, fighters brought the blaze under control.

Fire Chief F. Schmidt estimated damage at $600. Cause of the fire was not established; however, certain clues pointed to incendiaryism.

Evening Instruction

The Bayshore Voters League, as part of its general program of education, has voted to organize a class in fundamental and social philosophy.

The course is to be given under the direction of a competent San Francisco school of instruction. The class will meet each Friday night at 7:45 for ten weeks. The first session was held last evening.

The place of meeting is at the city hall in Bayshore. The class is open to all local people. There is no tuition charge.

Hugh Bradley Says:

Huggins' Squelch of Blustering Babe a Classic Retort

TALES told around a town that has no curfew law for sports folks:

There was the time, fifteen years or so ago, when Babe Ruth had not yet become the model of propriety that he is today. Then the papers were full of his off the field antics and the dugout gossip was that little Miller Huggins could never learn to handle him.

That kept up for months. Some observers were laying long odds that Babe could never last because of the playboy pace he was setting. Others were equally sure there was only one solution of the problem. Modest, frail little Hug, not a particularly celebrated player in his own day, was not fit to be compared to this newly arrived star of all stars. The thing to do was have him succeed Huggins as manager. Then all would be well.

Hug, listened, sat in his little office or on the edge of the bench, Miller Huggins sat there, sucking at a now dead pipe, saying nothing. Finally Babe reached his climax.

"You, you," he shook a fist at the silent 120-pounder, then raised himself to his full, massive stature. "If you were only man's size I'd beat the hell out of you."

Hug took the pipe from his lips, continued to look full at Ruth. "Yes," he said quietly. "And if I was your size you'd have jumped out of that window ten minutes ago."

There is the tale Reuben Gray, inventor of the Australian starting barrier now used at Hialeah, tells about Phar Lap. Many turfmen think that Phar Lap was an even greater thoroughbred than Man o' War, but no matter about that. He was good and the big books were loaded with money on him shortly before the running of the Melbourne Cup one year.

Something had to be done. Somebody tried to do it. Australians are not quite as subtle as their American brethren. Sponges, slow pills and such modern aids to betting coups do not appeal to them.

Phar Lap was cantering around his training track one day when an automobile approached. This was nothing new, people were always wanting to get a glimpse of the wonder horse. That day, though, Phar Lap snuffed, wheeled around so suddenly that he almost upset his jockey. A shot echoed. The automobile sped away.

When investigation was made it was discovered that if Phar Lap had not wheeled around so suddenly the bullet must surely have bumped him off. Perhaps that explains the misfortunes inflicted upon humans who lack horse sense.

An enterprising campus reporter might make a good story—at least the human interest is there—out of it. Anyhow, I offer the tip as it came to me from a regretful alumnus the other night.

The boy's name is Sullivan. They say he is the best football player to enter Princeton in years, that he is a good student and that he is steeped in the Tiger tradition. But he is ineligible because he played freshman football at a college out West—a full two minutes, they say.

There are other bits of stories. One about the ring that Harry Hillman, Dartmouth track coach, always wears. It came to him in 1904 after he had won 100, 220, 440 high hurdles and three-legged race in the annual Military meet. Lawson Robertson of Penn was Hillman's partner in the three-legged event and they still hold the 0.11 record for the 100.

Eleven seconds, incidentally, is the same time Helen Stephens took while winning the women's 100 in the Berlin Olympics.

Another short bit is the one concerning the touchdown Kansas scored to beat Iowa State in 1920. Dayhawkers still call it the "Dream Touchdown." That is because Dr. Phog Allen, then coaching football at Kansas, went to bed wondering how to beat Iowa State. Then dreamed about the formation which produced the touchdown.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

OSMIE SOLEM, now at Syracuse after long football coaching years at Iowa and Drake, already has discovered that Mid-Western gridiron candidates are bigger and more plentiful than in the East. He finds though that Eastern players usually are older, due to their high school plus prep school training, and this may be a big help.

Hank Greenberg is a dog-racing fan. Walter Kozak, the pro golfer who became one of the turf's most celebrated bettors, splits his Florida golf tournament earnings with his caddy and kid brother. Lieutenant Abe Goldman, now one of Brooklyn's most eminent detectives, once spent most of his time acting as sparring partner for Middleweight Champion Al McCoy.

That section of a palpitating public which spends its days wondering what pro hockey players do in the off season can be enlightened as follows: Allen Shields, Bruins' defense man, owns a new hotel in Ottawa. Happy Day of the Maple Leafs has given six of his best years to a Toronto drug store. Art Coulter is undecided between a trip into the North Woods with Forest Ranger Ted Graham or another stay in his Michigan wilderness camp. Fast-stepping Bob Gracie of the Maroons goes back to his gas station at Wasaga Beach, Ontario. Hal Cotton is a Toronto sports broadcaster as is King Clancy. Chuck Conacher runs the Silver Slipper Dance hall at Wasaga Beach. Frank McCurry, N. H. L. referee, is a practicing dentist. Another referee, Ag Smith, manages a chain of orange drink stands in Boston. Pete Palangio, one of the newest members of the Chicago Black Hawks, operates a bus from his home town, North Bay, Ontario, to the Dionne quintuplets hospital in Callendar.

Governor Fred P. Cone soon will recommend to the Florida legislature that changes be made in the present betting setup. Pari-mutuel bookies, established around town after the Paris fashion and relaying wagers to the course, will be one of the suggested improvements. He is reported as feeling that this is the only way to eliminate the hand-books, strong pressure previously having failed to budge them.

Joe Di Maggio once liked tennis better than baseball. Frankie Clause, who recently defeated bowling ace Andy Varipapa by 102 pins in a 20-game money series, teaches history in Old Forge High school near Scranton, Pa.

Canzoneri Believes Comeback Possible

Tony Canzoneri still is undecided about a comeback but insistently claims that he can lick Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers. . . A few odd names of New York fighters as observed in recent P. A. notices—John L. Sullivan, Percival Allen, Battling Dynamite Reno, "Tin Can" Romanelli, James J. Johnson.

Herb Brodie, used to fight in New York under the direction of the late Paddy Mullins. That was eight years or so ago and in those days Herb was a lightweight and wore a mustache. . . "Just Plain Bill" Johnston may promote boxing at a ball park this summer. . . Gene Pope, the publisher, has signed Enrico Venturi, Aldo Spoldi, Saverio Turriello, Italo Colonelli and Vinc Dell'Orto to appear in a benefit show for Italian newspaper men at the St. Nicks next month.

New York merchants who believe a heavyweight championship fight is worth a cool $6,000,000 in extra spending in the town where it is held, are somewhat peeved at Uncle Mike Jacobs. They say that after paying pretty prices for Uncle Mike's amusement duets and after laying a bit of advertising on the line for Uncle Mike's allies, they deserve a better break than having Jim Braddock lose his title in Chicago. . . Fight folks should give a look at Ord Pink, Syracuse junior. Last year, his first letter-winning season, he won the Eastern intercollegiate, the national college and was the only college man to make the Olympic boxing team. While doing this he won 16 out of 20 bouts by knockouts. His only defeat was the decision Jimmy Clark, former A. A. U. champion since turned pro, won over him in the Chicago Olympic tryout finals.

One of the best of bets is that college baseball will be more interesting this season than it has been since attacked by the blight 20 years ago. The reason is that so many stalwart youngsters finally have realized that baseball is a real profession paying tidy and immediate profits. Also there is the fact that managers and owners prefer college players.

400 oldtime fighters gathered recently in Philadelphia for a banquet. Among them such as Jack McAuliffe, Harry Lewis, Jack Britton, Tommy Loughran, Lew Tendler, Peter Maher, Joe Grim, Harlem Tommy Murphy, Jack Daly, Dick McCoy, Jake Kilrain, Johnny Kilbane, Benny Leonard, Jack O'Brien and Bat Levinsky. . . The Giants are going to struggle along without a captain this season now that Travis Jackson has taken over managerial worries at Jersey City.

CALIFORNIA News of the Week

Municipal Power System Loses
San Francisco.—Voters of this city voted down by approximately 12,000 majority a proposal to issue $50,000,000 worth of bonds to purchase the Pacific Gas & Electric Company's local distribution system and build a new city power plant.

Woman To Run For Mayor
Eureka.—Mrs. Emily L. Jones, mayor of Eureka from 1929 to 1931 and only woman executive in the city's history, will again be a candidate for that office at the city elections in June. Following her term as mayor, Mrs. Jones was with the State welfare department for several years.

Beach Park Proposed
Huntington Beach.—Establishment of a State beach park on a vast stretch of beautiful beach frontage here has been taken under advisement by the State park board. The park would include a 200-acre site across the State highway.

Would Bar Girl Bartenders
Sacramento.—A s s e m b l y m a n Charles A. Hunt of Los Angeles has introduced a bill which would forbid any person hiring a female bartender and prescribes a maximum penalty of $100 fine or three months in jail. The California branch of the Bartenders International League is supporting the measure.

11,000-Volt Wire Stolen
Colusa.—Three miles of copper cable, carrying 11,000 volts, were cut from the standards of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company line running out of College City, disrupting part of the valley service. The thieves were equipped with trucks and reels. Power company officials said only experts could have accomplished the theft and then only at great risk.

Find Cause of Air Crash
San Francisco.—United Air Lines officials announced that an investigation disclosed that a radio microphone lodged between the control column and seat rail and caused the crash of a Los Angeles-San Francisco plane last February 9, with loss of eleven lives. Steps already have been taken to prevent any recurrence of such a situation, the company's statement declared.

New Blind School Head Named
Sacramento.—Robert Chandler, assistant superintendent of the Whittier State School, has been placed in charge of the Oakland State School for the Blind, temporarily succeeding ex-Superintendent Joseph M. Kelley. Kelley was dismissed by the State Personnel Board as a result of charges brought by the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

S. F. Body Approves Central Valleys
San Francisco.—Directors of the San Francisco chamber of commerce have voted to approve the Central Valleys water project "in its present form." A previous board of directors voted against the project in 1933. The issue was recently brought to a head when several of the affected counties threatened to withhold support of the 1939 San Francisco world's fair unless the city withdrew its opposition to the project.

Sales Tax Receipts Gain
Sacramento.—California's 3 per cent retail sales tax yielded $81,235,523 in 1936, a record amount, the State Board of Equalization announced. Because of a change in rate and the exemption of foodstuffs in 1935, a fair comparison can be made only between the last six months of 1936 and the last half of the previous year. During the last half of 1935 the return from the tax amounted to $35,414,211, as compared with $43,613,752 collected during the last six months of 1936, a gain of 23.15 per cent.

Mark Requa, GOP Leader, Dead
Los Angeles.—Mark L. Requa of Santa Barbara, long a leading figure in Republican politics, died in a hospital here after several weeks' illness. As a close friend of Herbert Hoover, he managed the latter's campaign for the presidency in California in 1928 and as California national committeeman directed the Hoover campaign in the West in 1932. When Hoover returned from Europe during the World War to become United States food administrator, he made Requa his assistant as fuel administrator. Like Hoover, he was an engineer.

Historic Hotel Burns
Placerville.—The historic St. Francis Hotel, Placerville landmark from the roaring gold rush days of '49, was destroyed by flames in an early morning fire last week.

Vollmer To Retire From U. C.
Berkeley.—In order to devote his time to writing, August Vollmer, prominent criminologist and police department organizer, will retire as professor of police administration, University of California, at the end of the semester.

Keeping Up With Science By Science Service

Electric Eel to Be Investigated in His Habitat

Working of His Power Plant Will Be Studied

New York.—What happens to an electric eel when another electric eel hands it a dose of its own medicine?

This is one of the questions being taken to the Brazilian tropics by Dr. Richard T. Cox of the New York university physics department, who has left for an extended research visit in Para, Brazil, near the mouth of the Amazon, a favored haunt of the "shocking" elongated fish whose ability to generate and discharge paralyzing "jolts" of electricity is one of the classic riddles of biophysics.

Among the pieces of apparatus which Dr. Cox is taking with him is one calculated to deliver electrical discharges like those of the eel itself. His plan is to put his eel into contact with the device, "give it the works," and then make a careful scientific record of the fish's reaction. This is something that has never been done in the aquarium studies thus far undertaken in temperate lands.

Will Study Its Power Plant.

Even more intimate studies of the electric eel's internal power plant and its workings are planned by Dr. Cox. He plans to block off various parts of the eel's system of electric organs, either by sectioning nerves or with anesthetics, and thus to make analytic studies which have never been possible under aquarium conditions, where the supply of specimens is so limited that only studies of surface reactions have been possible.

A prime part of Dr. Cox's research apparatus will be the cathode ray oscillograph, a relatively new instrument which has proved a most powerful tool in the hands of physicists and engineers studying the nature and rates of sudden electrical discharges. Modern apparatus of this kind has never been used in electric eel studies, he says.

Why He Goes to the Eels.

One reason why Dr. Cox is going to the tropics where the eels are, instead of having the eels brought to him, is that these peculiar fish do not survive the voyage north at all well, so that it is better economy for him to go where they are plentiful and where he can consequently afford to use up a few without constantly having to keep an anxious eye on a diminishing supply in a tank.

Dr. Cox will have with him his wife, Mrs. Shelby Shackelford Cox, as artist and general assistant, and a biologist, Robert S. Mathews, graduate student at Columbia.

Spectroscope's Eye Useful in Finding Impurities in Iron

Cambridge.—How the powerful eye of the spectroscope is used in industry to analyze metals, particularly in testing steels and alloys for impurities, was explained to the symposium on metals at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology here by Prof. George R. Harrison, director of the institute's spectroscopy laboratory.

Even such small amounts as one part in ten thousand of some metals, such as aluminum or magnesium, will greatly alter the properties of steel, it has been found. Thus the inclusion of one old automobile crank case of the wrong type may spoil tons of steel.

The spectrograph, he explained, constitutes a quick and accurate method of checking steel for such impurities.

X-Rays Aid Study of Poison Sprays

Ithaca, N. Y.—X-rays are being used by Prof. G. F. McLeod of Cornell university to get exact data on how poison sprays containing sulphur behave as they stick to leaves, and what becomes of the sulphur after the marauding insect or caterpillar has bitten out and swallowed some appetizing but lethal green pieces.

The rays used in the photography are of the kind known as Grenz rays; they are like X-rays but have somewhat greater wavelengths, intermediate between X-rays and ultraviolet.

Spring - Fashions - Sewing

ARE the robins showing interest in real estate out your way—and have the kiddies been hinting that it's about time to go barefoot—have you been trying to get a little house cleaning done—and have you noticed a few of the town's rabid sportsmen out poking around on the fairways—have you had any knights of the road stop by for a hand-out or seen any gypsies—in short, is it Spring out your way? That, of course, brings us to the omnipresent subject of fashions, and this in turn to the ubiquitous topic of Sew-Your-Own.

One in Silk; One in Cotton.
If you're a devotee of trim lines and real comfort make this new all-occasion dress for yourself (Pattern 1973) in two versions: a silk print in which to greet the bright new season; a cotton one for day in, day out service. For completeness and simplicity, there's no substitute for this stylish number. It is designed for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 3½ yards of 35 inch material.

Two Versions From One Pattern.
And see what the Chic Twins have, two lovely blouses with but a single purpose—to make you look your very veriest. They're combined to make Pattern 1271 the biggest hit of the season. You can wear the notched lapel model with casual sports outfits and the ruff-collared style with the more tailored suits. Puff sleeves and saucy peplums are particularly intriguing features of both blouses. Either is available for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 (top model) requires 2 yards of 39 inch material or 2½ yards for the other. Remember, both are included in Pattern 1271.

Sewing Easy; Frock Charming.
Pattern 1259 is truly an Ode to Spring—one that's fit for print, too. A bright nosegay, for instance, will be just the thing to promote your charm and grace. The far-reaching collar and grosgrain ribbon tie will indeed become your pretty face. The puff sleeves and smart cuffs fairly snap with chic. Comes in sizes 12-20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 5¼ yards of 39 inch material plus ¾ yard contrasting. The bow requires ¾ yard ribbon. In full length size 14 requires 6½ yards of 39 inch material.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. This act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Bedtime Story for Children

THE LAST OF THE ROBBER RATS.

ALMOST at the heels of the last frightened rat, fleeing from the house of Billy Mink's friend, the farmer, appeared Billy Mink himself. The rat started for the big barn, but Billy caught him before he was half way there.

The farmer, who had been watching, knew that that was the last rat. He knew it because he knew that Billy would not have shown himself outside as long as there was a rat left inside. At once the farmer went over and stopped up that hole so that no rat could get back into the house. "You killed one of my chickens, you little brown rascal," said he, "but you've paid for it ten times over. I had intended to kill you for that beautiful brown coat of yours, but now I wouldn't harm a hair of it. As long as you stay around here the better I will like it, and I shall see to it that you have plenty to eat."

Billy Mink didn't hear this, and he wouldn't have understood it if he had. But he had already made up his mind that the farmer was his friend and that was sufficient. After catching that last rat to leave the house, Billy went over to the woodpile where he was making his home. It didn't take him long to discover that some of those rats were hiding in the woodpile, and he promptly hunted them out of there just as he had hunted them out of the house. Then, being tired, he curled up for a nap.

For two or three days after that Billy Mink hunted rats. He hunted them until there was not one of that robber gang left in the big barn, the henhouse, or under the woodpile. In fact, there wasn't one of those robber rats left on the farm. Where those who had escaped had gone, the farmer didn't know, and Billy Mink didn't know, and neither of them cared. The farmer was so happy at being rid of those robbers that it seemed as if he couldn't do enough for Billy Mink. He kept Billy supplied with good things to eat, so that Billy didn't know what it was to be really hungry. He grew as fat as a mink can be, and he grew lazy as well.

Now Billy Mink is not naturally lazy. He is one of the most active of all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. Not having to hunt for his food, Billy found little to do but eat and sleep, and after a week of this he began to get uneasy. He began to long for excitement and new scenes. And so one night Billy left his comfortable quarters and started back for the Laughing Brook in the Green Forest near Farmer Brown's, the place he really called home. He was anxious to find out if any of his friends there had been caught in the traps which had been the cause of his leaving the Laughing Brook. The next morning the food put out by the farmer for him was untouched, and the farmer knew that Billy had left. He was sorry.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

DOING OVER A WORN VARNISHED FLOOR

WEAR on a floor first shows at doorways. That is where a varnish finish first gives out. With the varnish on the rest of the floor in good condition, the worn place can be patched. The first move is to go over it with sandpaper, and then to wipe with a cloth damp with turpentine to take up all traces of dust. Varnishing of the worn spot should begin in the middle, with the varnish brushed toward the edges. In this way the edge of the patch should not show; if it does, the joint can be lightly rubbed with fine sandpaper. When this coat is hard, a second coat should be put on in the same way.

Should the varnish on a floor appear dingy, although not worn through, a single thin coat of varnish all over will restore its freshness. Before varnishing, the floor should be washed. A floor should be washed in sections—not all over at one time. Thick suds of a pure soap should first be used, followed by clean cloths damp with clear water to remove all traces of the soap. A washed section should then be wiped dry and washing continued on an adjoining section. A wood floor should not be flooded with water; in washing, no more water should be used than necessary. Even so, some water will soak in, and a washed floor should have at least twenty-four hours drying before being varnished.

Good quality floor varnish should be used; inexpensive varnishes will quickly scratch and wear. A can of varnish should not be shaken or violently stirred, for either of these will produce air bubbles in the varnish that will mar the finished job. Beginning at one wall, the section should be varnished to the other wall, and then, returning to the start, the next width of strips should be varnished in the same way. Varnish should be applied with a fairly flat brush, and should always be brushed in straight strokes. Varnish is spread forward by carrying the brush in straight strokes over the same place until an entire brushful is spread in a thin coat.

With quick drying varnish, and if all of the furniture can be moved out, a floor can be given two coats of varnish in a day. Otherwise, the furniture should be moved to half the room while the other half of the floor is being varnished. This half should be finished before the furniture is moved back, to permit the varnishing of the rest of the floor.

Varnishing should always begin across the room from a doorway, so that the worker can get out without harming the work.

Does a Person's Character Affect the Amount of Work He Can Do?

IT HAS usually been believed that working ability depended upon only health and native strength, but Dr. W. Brunner, German scientist, reports in his article "Charakterfeststellung durch Bewegungsproben" that tests devised and applied to workmen in Germany showed a definite close correlation between a man's character and his ability at work. He found that people of equal physical ability did not do the same amount of work, and on investigation and testing found that the difference was in the character of the men, and that this factor affected all workers more than had been previously known. Good character goes with maximum work, he found.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis
© Public Ledger, Inc.

YOUR analyses of thumbs have doubtless impressed you with how greatly this important element of the hand varies with the individual in denoting the kind and quality of temperamental expression. This is also true of the fingers. Each expresses not only a basic characteristic of the inner self but also the manner in which it is put to use.

The First or Finger of Ambition.

This finger, sometimes called the Finger of Jupiter, has been held by the most celebrated palmists to be incontrovertible in its indications of the power to command, to attain and hold one's "place in the sun."

Whether this very desirable quality of character is being actually utilized or is merely lying dormant awaiting its owner's recognition, you will find it clearly shown by a first finger that is of unusual straightness and strength.

If of medium length and of square type, the indications are of capability in directing others in the accomplishment of practical results along a variety of lines. If pointed, with a well-defined taper from base to finger tip, the ability to command will be expressed in more idealistic activities, such as drama, art or literature. If of spatulate type, we have the man or woman of alert executive mind which conceives big projects and drives them through no matter what the odds. If long and large-jointed, the indications are of power and ambition aplenty, but the kind that moves with slow and sure deliberation.

No matter what the type, however, absence of flexibility is invariably associated with the Finger of Jupiter that gains and holds a place of leadership.

How Many Pennies Your Child's Life?

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first.

All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

POINT SAN PEDRO ROCKAWAY BEACH

Once more the huge, ungainly caterpillar tractor lurched uphill Sunday of this week and bit chunks out of the upper steeps. Its deep rumbling and snorts disturbed the Sabbath calm as much as its powerful attack disfigured the erstwhile green mountain slopes, leaving revealed the ugly ochre of underlying clay and tossing away the rich black loam that had gathered for centuries. The operator of the caterpillar is highly skilled. The final descent of man and machine down the precipitous mountain at the end of the day was an exciting event watched by all the residents of upper Pedro terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Petersen, Rockaway Beach, are the proud owners of a new Plymouth car. Mrs. Bicknell remarks casually, "We may be sure we will not see the Petersens at home for many a week end."

George Olmo had a serious time of it last week when he was taken ill at night with something like acute indigestion following a dinner party. Harry Rees, called up by Mrs. Olmo after midnight, drove over to Rockaway, bringing Dr. Shawk back with him. The sufferer was removed to the hospital. Now, fully recovered, he is at home again.

Hermie Bryant had a birthday last week. He and wife went for a frolic. In response to neighbors' inquiry the Bryant children said, "We're not telling how old our father is, but he's over 21."

Mrs. Jennie Bicknell spent the week end visiting her brother, D. Gillis, at Stockton. There were drives and scenery, chats with friends and much jollity in general, as is usually the case with any party of which Mrs. Bicknell is a member.

Fred Bohr and family came down for Saturday and Sunday. Bozo, the wirehair, has had another bath and he looks as dazzling white as any lambkin.

"Tovarich" Appointed By Theatergoers Of Large Cities In Europe And America

"Tovarich," the hit of two continents, which Gilbert Miller has brought to American shores, was adapted from the French of Jacques Deval by Robert E. Sherwood, author of such recent Broadway successes as "Reunion in Vienna," "The Petrified Forest" and "Idiot's Delight." This represents a radical departure from Mr. Sherwood's usual custom; it is his first adaption. Always up to this time he was content to write original works, but Deval's play so captivated him that he was compelled to fashion an English translation of it.

The play comes to the Curran Theater for a limited engagement starting Monday night, March 22, with a sparkling trail of European triumphs behind it. It has played in 24 cities in Europe, each time with record breaking success. Paris saw its initial performance two seasons ago, and Parisian theatergoers packed the house for 800 subsequent evenings. With infectious rapidity it spread to Vienna, where it played 250 times, an unusual record for a town which generally tires of a play in four or six weeks. Stockholm took it to its heart, then Prague, Berlin, Budapest, Marseilles, Hamburg, and unnumberable other European cities.

Well aware of the subtle difference between London and Pacific Coast audiences, Homer Curran has gathered together a distinguished cast to perform "Tovarich" in San Francisco. Eugenie Leontovich, the original star of the European engagements, will share honors with Os-good Perkins of the New York Theater Guild and Bela Lugosi, distinguished Hungarian actor. Others in the company will include Melville Cooper, Mary Forbes, Bruce Campbell, Hans Herbert, Frances Reid, Marion Ballou, Fay Helm, Wedgewood Nowell, Robert Long, and Betty Hardy.

Peter Mather, who was with Gilbert Miller in the original London and European engagements and for the past season has been associated with the New York production at the Plymouth Theater, staged "Tovarich" on the Pacific Coast for Homer Curran.

A program followed the meeting with a pantomime tea reception given in honor of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and Mrs. Alice Birney, in which children of the fourth grade participated.

The Balboa Girls Choral sang songs, under the direction of Mrs. Deen White. Mrs. Elmer Miller, district president, and Mrs. R. J. Spann, past district president, were guest speakers.

CANDLE LIGHTING

After the program the candle lighting ceremony took place, in which the president, the past presidents of the unit, the teachers and honor guests participated. Mrs. Spann lit a candle for faith, Mrs. Weller for hope, Mrs. Jonas for love and Mrs. Miller for charity. Refreshments were served.

BAYSHORE NEWS

The annual Easter egg hunt for children of Bayshore City promises, this year, to be the biggest and best ever held. The committee, composed of representatives of all local organizations and headed by Mrs. Sue Byrnes, has completed detailed plans for the affair.

Tom Keene, president of the Town and Country Kennel Club, has generously offered that the green in the center of the dog tract may be used for the hunt. The fire and police departments will help sponsor the party.

Donations have been received from all organizations and there will be gifts for every child and many special prizes. Members of the committee and organizations they represent are Mrs. Sue Byrnes and Mrs. I. Mardecich, town of Bayshore; Art Ford, Good Fellows Bert Ford, Protective Association; Emma Taylor, Voters League; Clifford Richards, firemen; Mrs. H. Little, P. T. A.; Mrs. Bea Jeppessen, Good Ladies, and Al Taylor, Improvement Club.

Time of the hunt will be 1:30, Easter Sunday. Children are asked to meet at the school house at 1:15.

Mrs. Park Tyrell is recuperating from an appendicitis operation. She has been in the hospital for two weeks but will return home Sunday.

Mayor Jack Lawson has been ill for the past week.

to the community Easter egg fund, which will be used to sponsor an egg hunt for the children of Bayshore.

Tuesday of next week the city water committee, Mayor Lawson, the city attorney and engineer will meet to study plans for the acquisition of water mains south of Geneva avenue. In order to give this section improved water service and fire protection the city hopes to establish ownership of lines south of Geneva avenue which, in connection with the Diamond District, will constitute a municipally owned water system.

City Attorney Hoffman reported that he had received letters from the WPA and from Agricultural District No. 1 in which both parties disclaimed responsibility for the nuisance on Rio Verde street created by an increased flow of surface water from the cow palace grounds. He stated that he would follow up the matter and see that corrective measures are taken.

A P. T. A. whist was held in the old city hall, Thursday of this week. Mrs. Irene Mardecich was chairman of the affair. Refreshments were served. First prize, a quarter ton of coal, was donated by H. H. Smith of Daly City. Proceeds will go to the general fund.

Gas, Gas All the Time, Can't Eat or Sleep

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jas. Filler.
Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.
Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

"Yes, yes. So I understand. And I want to hear more about this affair." The tension in his voice was patent. "Floyd told me that Woodie's death had all the appearance of suicide, but that you do not accept that conclusion. Would it be asking too much if I requested further details with regard to your attitude in this respect?"

"There can be no doubt, sir," Vance returned quietly, "that your nephew was murdered. There are too many indications that contradict the theory of suicide. But it would be inadvisable, as well as unnecessary, to go into details at the moment. Our investigation has just begun. By the by, doctor, may I ask what detained you this afternoon?—I gathered from your son that you usually return home long before this time on Saturdays."

"Of course, you may," the man replied with seeming frankness; but there was a startled look in his eyes as he gazed at Vance. "I had some obscure data to look up before I could continue with an experiment I'm making; and I thought today would be an excellent time to do it, since I close the laboratory and let my assistants go on Saturday afternoons."

"And where were you, doctor," Vance went on, "between the time you left the laboratory and the time of your arrival here?"

"To be quite specific," Professor Garden answered, "I left the university at about two and went to the public library where I remained until half an hour ago. Then I took a cab and came directly home."

"You went to the library alone?" asked Vance.

"Naturally I went alone," the professor answered tartly. "I don't take assistants with me when I have research work to do."

"My dear doctor!" said Vance placatingly. "A serious crime has been committed in your home, and it is essential that we know—as a matter of routine—the whereabouts of the various persons in any way connected with the unfortunate situation."

"I see what you mean." "I am glad you appreciate our difficulties," Vance said, "and I trust you will be equally considerate when I ask you just what was the relationship between you and your nephew?"

The man turned slowly and leaned against the broad sill.

"We were very close," he answered without hesitation or resentment. "Both my wife and I have regarded Woodie almost as a son, since his parents died. He was not a strong person morally, and he needed both spiritual and material assistance. Perhaps because of this fundamental weakness in his nature, we have been more lenient with him than with our own son."

CHAPTER VII

Vance nodded with understanding. "That being the case, I presume that you and Mrs. Garden have provided for young Swift in your wills."

"That is true," Professor Garden answered after a slight pause. "We have, as a matter of fact, made Woodie and our son equal beneficiaries."

"Has your son," asked Vance, "any income of his own?"

"None whatever," the professor told him. "He has made a little money here and there, on various enterprises—largely connected with sports—but he is entirely dependent on the allowance my wife and I give him. It's a very liberal one—too liberal, perhaps, judged by conventional standards. But I see no reason not to indulge the boy. It isn't his fault that he hasn't the temperament for a professional career, and has no flair for business."

"A very liberal attitude, Doctor," Vance murmured, "especially for one who is himself so wholeheartedly devoted to the more serious things of life as you are. But what of Swift: did he have an independent income?"

"His father," the professor explained, "left him a very comfortable amount; but I imagine he squandered it or gambled most of it away."

"There's one more question," Vance continued, "that I'd like to ask you in connection with your will and Mrs. Garden's: were your son and nephew aware of the disposition of the estate?"

"I couldn't say. It's quite possible they were. Neither Mrs. Garden nor I have regarded the subject as a secret. . . . But what, may I ask, — Professor Garden gave Vance a puzzled look—"has this to do with the present terrible situation?"

"I'm sure I haven't the remotest idea," Vance admitted frankly. "I'm merely probing round in the dark, in the hope of finding some small ray of light."

Hennessey, the detective whom Heath had ordered to remain on guard below, came lumbering up the passageway to the study.

"There's a guy downstairs, Sergeant," he reported, "who says he's from the telephone company and has got to fix a bell or somethin'. He's fussed around downstairs and couldn't find anything wrong there."

Heath shrugged and looked inquiringly at Vance.

"It's quite all right, Hennessey," Vance told the detective. "Let him come up."

Hennessey saluted half-heartedly and went out.

"You know, Markham," Vance said, "I wish this infernal buzzer hadn't gone out of order at just this time. I abominate coincidences."

"Do you mean," Professor Garden interrupted, "that intercommunicating buzzer between here and the den downstairs? . . . It was working all right this morning—Sneed summoned me to breakfast with it as usual."

"Yes, yes," nodded Vance. "That's just it. It evidently ceased functioning after you had gone out. The nurse discovered it and reported it to Sneed who called up the telephone company."

"It's not of any importance," the professor returned with a lackadaisical gesture of his hand. "It's a convenience, however, and saves many trips up and down the stairs."

"We may as well let the man attend to it, since he's here. It won't disturb us," Vance stood up. "And I say, doctor, would you mind joining the others downstairs? We'll be down presently, too."

The professor inclined his head in silent acquiescence and, without a word, went from the room.

Presently a tall, pale, youthful man appeared at the door to the study. He carried a small black tool kit.

His Eyes Peering Cautiously Into the Garden.

"I was sent here to look over a buzzer," he announced with surly indifference. "I didn't find the trouble downstairs."

"Maybe the difficulty is at this end," suggested Vance. "There's the buzzer behind the desk."

The man went over to it, opened his case of tools and, taking out a flashlight and a small screw-driver, removed the outer shell of the box. Fingering the connecting wires for a moment, he looked up at Vance with an expression of contempt.

"You can't expect the buzzer to work when the wires ain't connected," he commented.

Vance became suddenly interested. Adjusting his monocle, he knelt down and looked at the box.

"They're both disconnected—eh, what?" he remarked.

"Sure they are," the man grumbled. "And it don't look to me like they worked themselves loose, either."

"You think they were deliberately disconnected?" asked Vance.

"Well, it looks that way." The man was busy reconnecting the wires. "Both screws are loose, and the wires aren't bent—they look like they been pulled out."

"That's most interestin'," Vance stood up, and returned the monocle to his pocket meditatively. "It might be, of course. But I can't see why anyone should have done it. . . . Sorry for your trouble."

"Oh, that's all in the day's work," the man muttered, readjusting the cover of the box. "I wish all my jobs were as easy as this one." After a few moments he stood up.

"Let's see if the buzzer will work now. Any one downstairs who'll answer if I press this?"

"I'll take care of that," Heath interposed, and turned to Snitkin. "Hop down to the den, and if you hear the buzzer down there, ring back."

Snitkin hurried out, and a few moments later, when the button was pressed, there came two short answering signals.

"It's all right now," the repair man said, packing up his tools and going toward the door. "So long." And he disappeared down the passageway.

Vance smoked for a moment in silence, looking down at the floor. "I don't know, Markham. It's dashed mystifyin'. But I have a notion that the same person who fired the shot we heard disconnected those wires. . . ."

Suddenly he stepped to one side behind the draperies and crouched down, his eyes peering out cautiously into the garden. He raised a warning hand to us to keep back out of sight.

"Deuced queer," he said tersely. "That gate in the far end of the fence is slowly opening. . . . Oh, my aunt!" And he swung swiftly into the passageway leading to the garden, beckoning to us to follow.

Vance ran past the covered body of Swift on the settee, and crossed to the garden gate. As he reached it he was confronted by the haughty and majestic figure of Madge Weatherby. Evidently her intention was to step into the garden, but she drew back abruptly when she saw us. Our presence, however, seemed neither to surprise nor to embarrass her.

"Charmin' of you to come up, Miss Weatherby," said Vance. "But I gave orders that everyone was to remain downstairs."

"I had a right to come here!" she returned, drawing herself up with almost regal dignity.

"Ah!" murmured Vance. "Yes, of course. It might be, don't y' know. But would you mind explainin'?"

"Not at all. I wished to ascertain if he could have done it."

"And who," asked Vance, "is this mysterious 'he'?"

"Who?" she repeated, throwing her head back sarcastically. "Why, Cecil Kroon!"

Vance's eyelids drooped, and he studied the woman narrowly for a brief moment. Then he said lightly: "Most interestin'. But let that wait a moment. How did you get up here?"

"That was very simple. I pretended to be faint and told your minion I was going into the butler's pantry to get a drink of water. I went out through the pantry door into the public hallway, came up the main stairs, and out on this terrace."

"But how did you know that you could reach the garden by this route?"

"I didn't know!" She smiled enigmatically. "I was merely reconnoitering. I was anxious to prove to myself that Cecil Kroon could have shot poor Woody."

"And are you satisfied that he could have?" asked Vance quietly.

"Oh, yes," the woman replied with bitterness. "Beyond a doubt. I've known for a long time that Cecil would kill him sooner or later. And I was quite certain when you said that Woody had been murdered that Cecil had done it. But I did not understand how he could have gotten up here, after leaving us this afternoon. So I endeavored to find out."

"And why, may I ask," said Vance, "would Mr. Kroon desire to dispose of Swift?"

The woman clasped her hands theatrically against her breast.

"Cecil was jealous — rightfully jealous. He's madly in love with me. He has tortured me with his attentions. . . . One of her hands went to her forehead in a gesture of desperation. "There has been nothing I could do. And when he learned that I cared for Woody, he became desperate. He threatened me."

Vance's keen regard showed neither the sympathy her pompous recital called for, nor the cynicism which I knew he felt.

"Sad—very sad," he murmured. Miss Weatherby jerked her head up and her eyes flashed.

"I came up here to see if it were possible that Cecil could have done this thing. I came up in the cause of justice!"

"Very accommodatin'," Vance's manner had suddenly changed. "We're most appreciative, and all that sort of thing. But I must insist, don't y' know, that you return downstairs and wait there with the others. And you will be so good as to come through the garden and go down the apartment stairs."

He was brutally matter-of-fact as he drew the gate shut and directed the woman to the passageway door. She hesitated a moment and then followed his indicating finger.

When we were back in the study Vance sank into a chair and yawned. "My word!" he complained. "The case is difficult enough without these amateur theatricals."

Markham, I could see, had been both impressed and puzzled by the incident.

"Maybe it's not all dramatics," he suggested. "The woman made some very definite statements."

"Oh, yes. She would. She's the type," Vance took out his cigarette case. "Definite statements, yes. And misleadin'. Really, y' know, I don't for a moment believe she regards Kroon as the culprit."

"But she certainly has something on her mind," protested Markham.

Sermons in Stone

In the Regional Museum in Aberdeen, Scotland, are many sermons exhibited in stone. These sermons are gathered from all over the British Isles, particularly Scotland, and represent both social and natural history, and are more impressive than textbooks. As an illustration, Carlyle's life is not only exhibited by his library of books, but from scenes associated with his life from his castle visits to his fishing haunts. Axe weapons, windmills and other paraphernalia of man's early history in Scotland are shown as processes of evolution. Geological specimens are shown amid flowers, fishes and birds and give a natural setting to the scene seldom witnessed in completion.

City And County Planners Discuss Developments At Dinner Meeting

proximately 40 San Mateo County civic leaders.

The highly successful meeting was presided over by Mayor C. A. Buck of Burlingame, chairman of the county planning commission. Upon recommendation, a resolution was passed favoring further meetings of both county and city planners in the interest of proper planning for fast growing San Mateo County.

County Engineer Urban S. Marshall received encouragement on his proposal of planting flowering trees along the soon to be widened portion of El Camino Real between Beresford and Redwood City. Magnolia trees were recommended. Marshall said the trees would bloom several months of the year, and eliminate the unsightliness certain to be caused by billboards, gas stations, car wrecking houses and hot dog stands along the highway.

MASTER ZONING

The county planning adviser pointed out the fine work performed since the formation of the county planning body, explaining that the master zoning plan has won nationwide recognition, and the beach acquisition program was recently lauded at a state gathering of planners.

The construction of a competitive belt railroad line between South San Francisco and Redwood City was urged. The line is needed before there can be any large industrial development. Speedy completion of the San Joaquin-to-the-Sea highway was advocated.

Bills Are Proposed For School Buses

The school bus, that relatively addition to modern school equipment, comes in for considerable legislative attention at this session of the California lawmakers.

A guard rail equipment on all buses would be required under a bill recently introduced. Purpose of the rail would be to prevent heads, arms or legs of pupils from protruding from the vehicle.

New Federal Show Is On Way Here

"A Touch of Brimstone," closing tomorrow evening at the Federal Theater, has scored a distinct success for the cast. It has met with the approval of every drama critic in town and has had the warm support of local theater goers.

"Help Yourself," which will be staged here Monday evening of next week, is now on the road heading northward toward San Francisco along the route over which subsequent Federal Theater attractions will be toured. It is planned to send out productions at the rate of one a month. The advance demand for tickets to "Help Yourself" may result in holding it for a third week, though it is booked for two only at this time.

"Help Yourself" is a farce comedy concerning a promotorial genius who, finding himself on the rocks financially, "helps himself" to a job with the biggest bank in town. His type is not unknown, being one of those brassy individuals known to every business man in all walks of life.

a number of child welfare cases in the county this year which have been aided by department funds and urged each unit to plan some activity for April for child welfare funds. The next district meeting, April 12, in San Mateo, will be devoted to child welfare. Interesting speakers on this subject will be present.

Mrs. Mary Hayes, poppy chairman, announced all units were conducting the poppy poster contest in their local schools. She stated District 26 has been given a quota of over 8000 poppies to be sold in the county this year and reminded members that poppy making has provided employment for veterans through the winter and spring months, and to many it is the only means they have of making money to help support themselves and their families. The poppies will be sold by volunteer workers of the American Legion Auxiliary, the week end before Memorial Day.
